Farm Bloc Launches Showdown Drive

VOTE NEARS ON BILL TO DEFER SOIL TILLERS

Hearing Set For Proposal To Liberalize Parity Price Structure

PERMANENT GAIN SEEN

Insurance Against Drop In Values After War Seen In Pace Measure

WASHINGTON, March 4—The farm bloc today launched a drive for a showdown in the senate and house on bills liberalizing the parity price structure and deferring farmers from the draft.

In the senate, Majority Leader Barkley said that a bill to defer all farmers and farm labor from the draft for the balance of 1943 would probably be considered in the upper branch on Monday.

In the house, the rules committee—which to date has proved a bottleneck in the progress of a bill to include farm labor costs in the computation of parity—gave assurances to Rep. Pace (D) Ga., sponsor of the measure, that he would get a hearing Tuesday.

Consider Bankhead Bill

At the same time, Chairman Fulmer (D) S.C., of the house agriculture committee, announced he would seek clearance from the rules committee for the senate-approved Bankhead bill which would prohibit the inclusion of AAA payments to farmers in parity computations.

Both the Pace and Bankhead bills have already been unanimously approved by the house agriculture committee, but a rule for their consideration must be granted by the rules committee before the measures can be called up in the house.

The legislation to defer farmers from the draft was originally introduced in the senate by Sen. Bankhead (D) Ala., with 40 of his colleagues joining him. Its passage by the upper branch is generally regarded as certain. A similar bill is being revamped by Fulmer for action in the house.

Passed By Senate

The bill to exclude AAA payments in computing parity was passed by the senate last week, 78 to 2, and Fulmer predicted today that it would easily win the approval of the house once a vote is reached.

CAPITAL FROWNS ON MARTINIQUE

Stubborn Attitude Of French General Brings Cut In Relief

WASHINGTON, March 4—Authoritative sources in Washington today disclosed that the United States government has curtailed the shipment of food and other supplies to Martinique.

Officially, the shipments have been curtailed because of the shortage of foodstuffs in this country and the heavy demands of the fighting forces and the allies for American supplies.

Unofficially, the move has been prompted by the stubborn attitude of Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French West Indies.

The French admiral has failed to show any willingness to help in the liberation of France. He has refused to join either the fighting French movement of Gen. Charles De Gaulle or the French North African forces of Gen. Henri Giraud.

He also has refused to make available to the United Nations a number of French merchant ships, including several tankers, which have been lying idle in French West Indies waters for months.

In regard to the merchant ships, Admiral Robert has taken the position that he cannot turn them over without the approval of the Vichy government, and the latter is unable to authorize any such transfer under the terms of the Franco-German armistice.

The American government, in the first place, no longer recognizes the existence of the Vichy regime, and, secondly, considers that the armistice terms ceased to apply when Germany occupied all France.

"OLD MAESTRO" TAKES SUDDEN TURN FOR WORSE

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 4—At times unconscious under an oxygen tent, Ben Bernie, 52, the "old maestro" of stage, screen and radio, today "made a turn for the worse."

For more than a month, Bernie has been suffering from pleurisy and heart trouble and has been confined at a Beverly Hills hotel, his brother said.

Maintaining a constant vigil at the bedside were the entertainer's wife and his 22-year-old son, Air Cadet Jason Bernie.

Machinist Who Aided U. S. in Pinch Quits Job to End Strike

ALAMEDA, Cal., March 4—Charles S. Young, who has been a machinist practically all of his 52 years, sat in his Alameda cottage today and wondered what he could do to help his country win this war. He was out of a job. He quit work at the General Engineering and Drydock Company because, in his own words, he did not want to be the cause of any further delay in the construction of badly needed warships. After he quit 260 machinists who had been on strike returned to work.

James P. Smith, union business agent, ordered the striking men back to work, but the controversy was not believed to be completely settled.

Although navy spokesmen refused comment on possible developments speculation grew that a presidential directive against the union might be requested.

Still pending were the cases of 26 other machinists who escaped expulsion but were fined for refusing to demand overtime pay.

They have refused to pay the fines, contending that they were doing their duty, when the navy asked them to work during the Christmas holidays, despite a union ban on such work.

Since 1914 Young had been a member of good standing in the machinists union. At the drydock company, he was shop steward.

Last Christmas week end Charley Young and quite a few other machinists responded to a call from the navy for a rush repair job.

One of the days they worked was Sunday, and for it they received regular pay.

Charley Young's union decided the men should have demanded double pay, and after a "trial" found Young guilty of conduct unbecoming a member of the union and fined him $75. Three others also were fined $75 each and a number of others were fined $25 each.

They all refused to pay. Young was expelled from the union.

Strike Called

Because Charley Young refused to quit his job, the union ordered its members off the job. That bothered Charley Young. I lay awake the last couple of nights thinking about the situation," he said. "I finally resolved that I would not be the cause of holding up vital navy war work. So I quit my job."

Young's decision ended the dispute which began when James P. Smith, business agent of the CIO Oakland Machinists' Union called

WASHINGTON, March 4—Grenville Clark, of New York, "father" of the Selective Service Act, today revealed to congress that a nation-wide organization has been formed to back labor draft legislation and also declared that adoption of such a law is inevitable.

"It is as certain as the sun rises that the people, as their sons or daughters go into service, will demand that we do what every other major power in the world has done in order to support our armies in the field," Clark said in testifying before the senate military affairs committee.

Clark said that the committee backing the Austin-Wadsworth bill, which subjects men from 18 to 65 and women from 18 to 50 to register and to be subject to industrial draft, will expand over the entire country. He is secretary of the committee.

"It is not a question of whether the bill passes, but when it will pass and in what form," he said.

WASHINGTON, March 4—Sen. Ed Johnson (D) Colo., today declared that the nation may be forced to conscription of employers and industry as well as labor to meet growing war demands.

"This country is facing a certain famine because of shortage of manpower and a likely reduction in arms production for the same reason," said Johnson, a member of the military affairs committee.

"We may be forced to adopt total conscription. However, if we do have total conscription of labor we must at the same time have total conscription of employers and industry generally."

Knock-Down And Drag-Out Fight Looms Between U. S. Agency And Miners

WASHINGTON, March 4—The War Labor Board today served mute notice on John L. Lewis that it would not grant any general wage increases in industry on the virtual eve of negotiations between Lewis's United Mine Workers union and the nation's soft-coal industry.

The implied warning was given as the board handed down its decision in a case in which 250,000 aircraft workers on the west coast were demanding an industry-wide pay increase in airplane plants.

Many concessions and compromises were made for the aircraft workers but the board refused union demands for general pay raises.

Big Battle Looms

The WLB's action presaged a "knock down, drag out" fight between the WLB and Lewis over demands for higher wages for the soft coal and also the anthracite miners. Speaking to more than 300 delegates to the tri-district convention of miners assembled in Scranton, Pa., to frame demands for pay boosts for 90,000 hard coal miners, Lewis pledged last night that "in this year of our Lord you men will have a wage increase."

In the aircraft case the WLB gave a pay increase of 4.5 cents an hour to 30,000 workers at the big Boeing bomber plants near Seattle, Wash. And, it granted a pay increase of 7.5 cents an hour to half of the 229,000 workers in plants of eight aircraft companies in southern California.

The grants were below demands made by the AFL's machinist's union, the CIO's auto workers and the Independent Welder's Union. However, the board made retroactive wage adjustment bonuses ranging from $64.75 to $78.75 to the southern California and Washington aircraft employees.

"Sop" To Union

This was regarded in informed labor circles as a "sop" to the union. Union leaders and the union rank and file on the west coast have staged protest meetings against the slowness of the board in reaching a decision. There also has been one work stoppage in the Boeing plant during the dispute.

BOY, 15, TELLS ABOUT MURDER OF EMPLOYER

MENOMONIE, Wis., March 4—A 15-year-old Eau Claire, Wis., youth was held in the Dunn county jail today after he confessed, according to Sheriff Fred Einum, that he killed his employer, Mrs. Eliza Shellhouse, 66-year-old widow, to cover up an accidental shooting at her farm home 10 miles east of Menomonie.

The youth, Merle Smith, who was on probation for petty theft in Eau Claire, told the sheriff he was shooting birds on the Shellhouse farm when the woman accidentally came into his line of fire. Sheriff Einum said the youth told him:

"When I saw her fall and knew I hit her, I was afraid she would tell, so I pumped seven more shots into her body."

The youth said he dragged the body to a hog house, covered it with straw, took $80 from his employer's house and went to his parents' home in Eau Claire where he was arrested after the body was found.

March 4—"Merciful Providence has guarded us in this great victory," was the terse comment today by General Douglas MacArthur on the destruction of the powerful Japanese convoy.

General MacArthur's communique covering the victory read:

"New Britain: Bismarck Sea: The battle of Bismarck Sea is now decided. We have achieved a victory of such completeness as to assume the proportions of a major disaster to the enemy. His entire force has been practically destroyed."

"His naval component consisted of 22 vessels, comprising 12 transports, 10 warships which were cruisers or destroyers."

"They represent tonnage estimated approximately at 90,000 tons."

After April 1 you can eat for business reasons.

By May, any fat man not carrying a certificate of glandular disorder will be suspected of trading in the black market.

A black market is a butcher shop where a piece of loyalty is thrown in for scrap with every illegal steak.

We not only are going to have to pull our belts tighter, we are going to have to remove the buckles and eat them.

If we are going to have to get along on a pound and three quarters of meat the butcher will have to stop weighing his arm with the pork chops.

We have bought the Butcher's right hand every Saturday night for 20 years and it still is on the scale. After April 1 he either will have to wrap it up for us or increase the point value of his forefinger.

LONDON, March 4—American Flying Fortress bombers today attacked Rotterdam and the German marshalling yards at Hamm.

By International News Service
The utter, staggering defeat suffered by the Japanese invasion fleet off New Guinea may entirely upset Japanese strategy in the southwest Pacific. Allied bombers, attacking in wave after wave for three days, completely wrecked a mighty convoy of 22 vessels.

Every ship in the invasion fleet was hit by at least three bombs and all were sunk or left in sinking condition. Allied observation planes reported today that not a vestige of the convoy could be sighted.

Not a single soldier of an estimated 15,000 that filled 12 transports reached the New Guinea shore.

Allied bombers completely smashed the enemy convoy of 10 warships and 12 transports, and shot down 62 Japanese Zero fighters in a three-day battle which raged from the Bismarck Sea north of New Britain island to the Huon Gulf of New Guinea.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique, announcing the victory, made this significant statement:

"Our decisive success cannot fail to have most important results on the enemy's strategic and tactical plans. His campaign, for the time being at least, is completely dislocated."

In the past the Japanese, when decisively beaten, have not dared take the same risks again. They have refused to send their battle-ships against Guadalcanal since their recent disasters in those waters. And it was considered unlikely that they will again attempt to land troops on territory within reach of allied bombers.

The devastating air attack, the terrible demonstration of ruthless power to destroy, was expected to deter the Japanese from any early attempt to invade Australia from the island bases fringing its northern coastline.

Allied losses in the smashing victory were believed to have been light. The British royal air force last night attacked the great German port and U-boat base of Hamburg in the eighth consecutive night bombardment of the Reich, the air ministry announced today.

Ten of Britain's big bombers were lost in this latest of a continuous round of aerial assaults aimed at destroying the submarine menace and preparing the continent for an allied invasion.

Objectives in western Germany also were hit.

The heavy attack on Hamburg was the RAF's 96th against that port.

Planes of the fighter command carried out intruder patrols over the continent while the main raid was in progress.

German bombers were active during the night and early today, twice making stabs at London in an attempt to make reprisals for the searing Monday night raid on Berlin. Later an unnamed town on the Thames river Estuary was bombed.

The air ministry said that 30 to 40 Nazi bombers, some of which penetrated the London defenses, took part in the first raid on the British capital. The second sortie against London involved a much smaller group of German craft. Some of these also reached the capital.

Three Nazi raiders were shot down.

The mounting fury of the allied air campaign was disclosed by an air ministry announcement that Germany or German-occupied territory had been raided every day and 26 nights during February.

New vistas were opened for the growing Russian offensive with Every ship in the invasion fleet was hit by at least three bombs and all were sunk or left in sinking condition. Allied observation planes reported today that not a vestige of the convoy could be sighted.

Not a single soldier of an estimated 15,000 that filled 12 transports reached the New Guinea shore.

Allied bombers completely smashed the enemy convoy of 10 warships and 12 transports, and shot down 62 Japanese Zero fighters in a three-day battle which raged from the Bismarck Sea north of New Britain island to the Huon Gulf of New Guinea.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique, announcing the victory, made this significant statement: "Our decisive success cannot fail to have most important results on the enemy's strategic and tactical plans. His campaign, for the time being at least, is completely dislocated."

In the past the Japanese, when decisively beaten, have not dared take the same risks again. They have refused to send their battle-ships against Guadalcanal since their recent disasters in those waters. And it was considered unlikely that they will again attempt to land troops on territory within reach of allied bombers.

The devastating air attack, the terrible demonstration of ruthless power to destroy, was expected to deter the Japanese from any early attempt to invade Australia from the island bases fringing its northern coastline.

Allied losses in the smashing victory were believed to have been light. The British royal air force last night attacked the great German port and U-boat base of Hamburg in the eighth consecutive night bombardment of the Reich, the air ministry announced today.

Ten of Britain's big bombers were lost in this latest of a continuous round of aerial assaults aimed at destroying the submarine menace and preparing the continent for an allied invasion.

Objectives in western Germany also were hit.

The heavy attack on Hamburg was the RAF's 96th against that port.

Planes of the fighter command carried out intruder patrols over the continent while the main raid was in progress.

German bombers were active during the night and early today, twice making stabs at London in an attempt to make reprisals for the searing Monday night raid on Berlin. Later an unnamed town on the Thames river Estuary was bombed.

The air ministry said that 30 to 40 Nazi bombers, some of which penetrated the London defenses, took part in the first raid on the British capital. The second sortie against London involved a much smaller group of German craft. Some of these also reached the capital.

Three Nazi raiders were shot down.

The mounting fury of the allied air campaign was disclosed by an air ministry announcement that Germany or German-occupied territory had been raided every day and 26 nights during February.

New vistas were opened for the growing Russian offensive with (Continued on Page Three)

FAST OR SLOW TIME QUESTION NOT SETTLED

Two Councilmen Report Frequent Requests To

COMMITTEE TO DECIDE

City Expected To Follow If
Columbus, Chillicothe
Make Move

That the question of 'fast' or 'slow' time in Circleville is not settled definitely was shown Wednesday evening in council when two members of the official family declared that they are being approached often by persons who advocate returning to Eastern War Time, contrary to the state legislature's action.

At the last meeting of council the question of time was put in the hands of a committee of the whole headed by J. Donald Mason. It was decided at that time to take no action, that move automatically putting Circleville on 'slow' time as urged by the general assembly.

At council meeting's outset Wednesday, Councilman Boyd Horn said that "between 100 and 125" persons had approached him asking him to vote to put Circleville on 'fast' time, declaring that there are too many conflicting schedules and that 'fast' time seems to be more recognized than 'state' time.

Mr. Horn was informed by Council President John C. Goeller that the matter is in the hands of a committee and that any action on the question must come through that committee.

Later Mr. Mason said that more and more local persons are becoming opposed to the 'slow' time schedule. However, the councilman advised that nothing be done about a change at the present time, urging council to watch Columbus and Chillicothe to see what is done in those two neighboring cities and then to follow their lead. So far Columbus and Chillicothe are operating on 'slow' time, while Lancaster and Washington C. H. retained 'fast' time, or Eastern War Time.

"The more local people see of the 'state' time," Mr. Mason said, "the sicker they are becoming of it, and some day we may be called on to change to 'fast' time again."

CARL GOELLER SEVERELY HURT IN AUTO MISHAP

John C. Goeller, East Mound street, received word Wednesday of the serious injury last week of his son, Carl G. Goeller of Wichita, Kansas, in an automobile accident in that state. Mr. Goeller is in Wichita hospital suffering from fractures of three vertebrae. He is in a cast from his shoulders to his knees.

Despite the severity of his injuries hospital attaches say he has a good chance to recover. He is expected to be in a cast for at least five weeks, however.

The accident happened when Mr. Goeller was driving between Walsh, Colorado, and Elkhart, Kansas. His car hit a low place in the road, went out of control and turned over.

Mr. Goeller, whose wife is the former Sarah Nothstine of Walnut township, is an employee of the Wichita Broom Corn and Supply Co.

PARKING METER INCOME SHOWS SLIGHT DECLINE

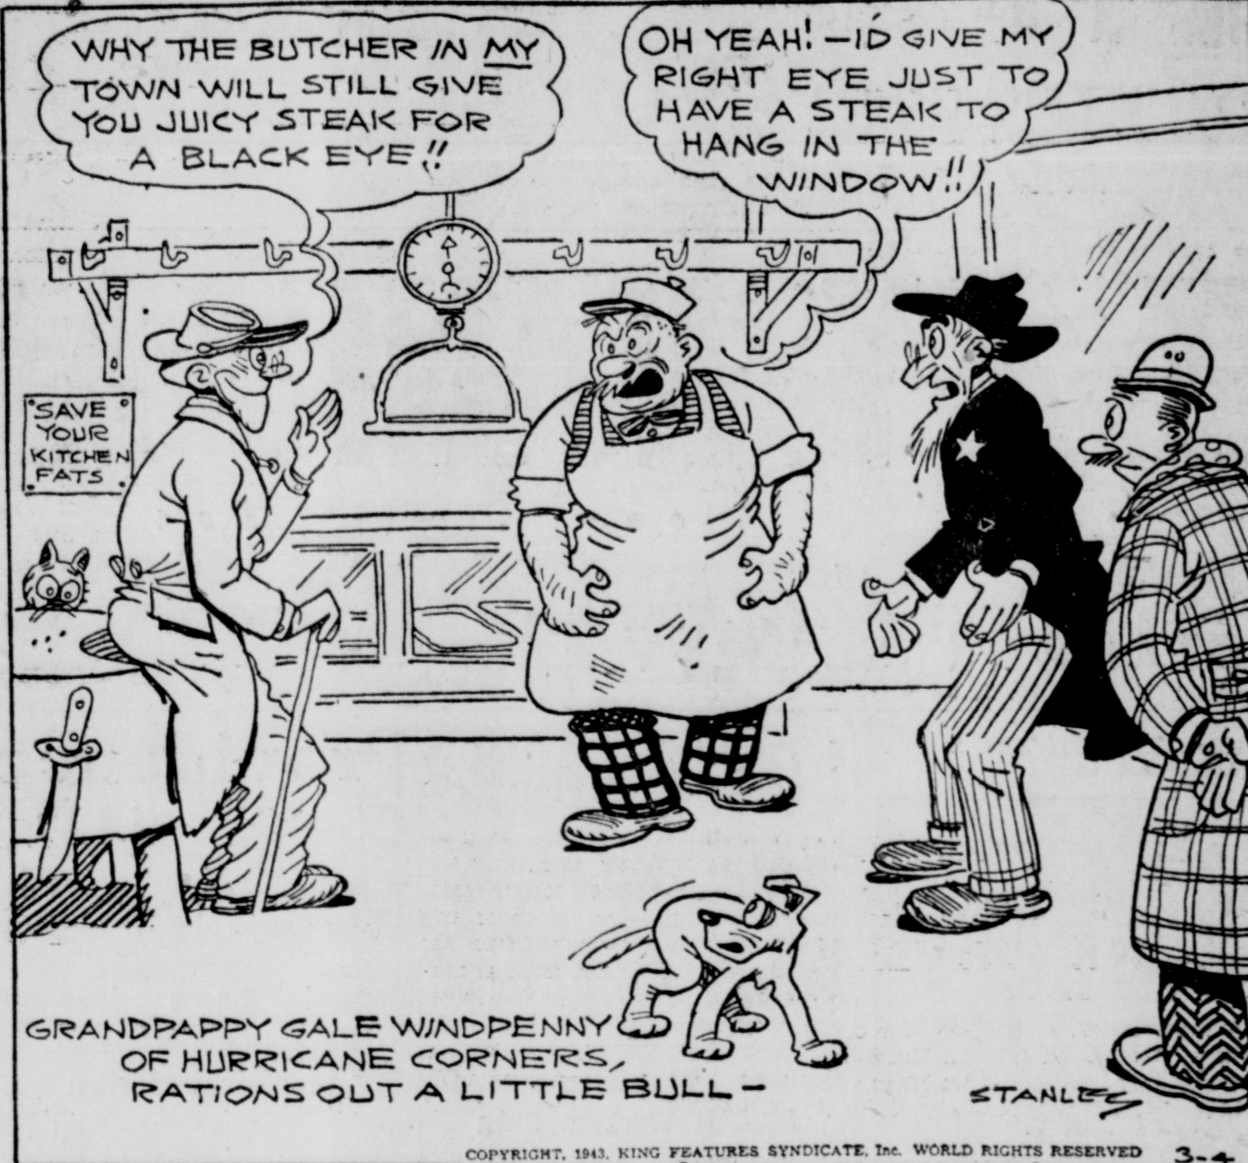

Although no figures were announced concerning collections from parking meters placed in Circleville's business area, Service Director Clarence Helvering told council Wednesday evening that meter collections have fallen off only a small amount.

The service chief's report was pleasing to council since many had feared that gasoline rationing and rubber shortage might be keeping many cars off the streets.

the fall of Rzehev, stubbornly held the front line in the German wedge into Soviet lines west of Moscow. With the city's capture it was held certain that the Germans would be forced to fall back along the whole line south of Rzehev.

Stockholm reports said the Germans had already begun to evacuate Orel, southwest of Moscow, and this was given credence by a Berlin admission that Soviet columns had breached the front and flank defenses of the town.

Russian forces were moving ahead slowly on the whole front south of Orel, despite strong resistance and frequent German counter-attacks.

In North Africa allied forces held the initiative on the whole front following repulse of German drives in northern Tunisia.

American forces advanced towards Faid Pass and Gafsa on the central front and French columns were reported only 15 miles from Gafsa in a drive from the south.

Artillery and bombers of the British eighth army laid a heavy barrage of shells and bombs on axis fortifications in the Mareth line in south Tunisia.

It is believed that the New Guinea battle provided the first time in the history of modern warfare that virtually 100 percent of a great convoy, boasting tremendous naval support and having 24-hour protection by land-based fighter planes, has been destroyed by land-based bombers alone.

The American craft operated without any naval support. The epochal American victory which equals the defeats handed the Japs in the battle of the Coral Sea and at Midway has unquestionably removed, for the present at least, the growing Japanese pressure which Gen. MacArthur asserted on Monday was slowly and steadily encircling Australia.

Powerful and deadly Lockheed Lightnings divided combat honors with the Flying Fortress gunners to account for 62 Japanese warplanes of all types which were shot down during the battle for control of the skies over the convoy. Many other Jap planes were reported damaged.

Of the total of 62 destroyed Jap planes 55 were knocked out of the skies directly over the convoy while seven others were destroyed in a dogfight over Lae when the enemy attempted to intercept allied planes supporting the assault on the enemy warships and transports.

The B-25 Mitchell medium bomber was easily the prodigal son of the whole blistering allied smash, however. Combining deadly strafing fire with magnificently timed bombing runs, The Mitchell mediums which lent their weight to the attack for a short time yesterday morning scored almost unbelievable victories.

They sank one warship, hit a 5,000-ton cargo ship which burst into flames and sank within two minutes, got two hits on an 8,000-ton transport which was left blazing fiercely, two hits on a 5,000-ton cargo vessel, hit a 6,000 to 8,000-ton ship which was left in a sinking condition, made two hits on a large destroyer which was left with black smoke belching 1,500 feet into the air, scored two more hits on a 5,000-ton cargo vessel which was stopped dead, and still another hit on a 3,000-ton cargo ship which was enveloped in huge columns of black smoke.

No less dramatic were the victories scored by the able performing A-20 attack planes which swept into the limelight in a blaze of glory yesterday after weeks acting only as "plug horses" by concentrating assaults on trails and supply dumps in the Lae area.

Smashing to the attack at mast-high altitude, yesterday, the vicious light bombers opened a series of blows which dealt 12 direct hits to six Jap vessels. They destroyed a cargo vessel of 6,000 to 8,000 tons which exploded in "one mighty blast," and scored direct hits on a 6,000-ton vessel which immediately broke into roaring flames. Two more successful runs were made on other cargo ships.

The original convoy first sighted off the north coast of New Britain consisted of 14 ships. It later was joined by eight other vessels.

As the allied fliers increased the force of their attack the Jap air coverage became weaker and weaker and his forces became scattered and dispersed. The remnants were isolated, became bewildered and were annihilated in successive attacks.

"Our losses were light," Gen. MacArthur said.

more scattered and dispersed, and finally his remnants, isolated and bewildered, were gradually annihilated by our successive air formations as we sent them into combat.

"Our losses were light. One bomber and three fighters were shot down and a number of others damaged, but returned to their base."

"Our decisive success cannot fail to have most important results on the enemy's strategic and tactical plans, his campaign for the time being at least is completely dislocated."

Battle Chronology

A chronology of the battle in the Bismarck Sea which culminated in the complete destruction of the biggest Japanese convoy ever to move into New Guinea waters was given today by an official spokesman at headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The main action took place beginning late Tuesday and lasted until noon Wednesday.

In the third attack by American Flying Fortresses, Mitchell B-25's and A-20 attack planes Tuesday afternoon, following two morning blows, Boeing Flying Forts scored a direct hit on one cargo ship and a near miss on a second.

The flight was intercepted by 15 to 20 Jap Zero fighter planes. The ace allied gunner bagged three of the Jap craft.

Final Attack

In the final attack at dusk Tuesday the Fortresses smashed a 6,000-ton cargo ship with two direct hits, leaving it in a sinking condition. An enemy fighter force of 15 to 17 strong attempted time and time again to break up the Fortress formations. But the Jap planes retreated after two of their craft were sent spinning into the sea.

All through the night of Tuesday Australian Catalina flying boats kept a shadow over the convoy reporting its constantly changing position to advance headquarters of Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, American commander of allied air forces in the southwest Pacific.

Big Warship Hit

Just before dawn Wednesday the Americans made a fresh attack to start off the last day of combat. They then scored a direct hit on a large warship, believed to be a cruiser.

From the first signs of light yesterday and throughout the day the rest of the job was up to the Americans. The bare figures covering destruction of Jap ships and planes tell their own story of the brilliant defeat of the foe.

set the board's action in refusing to grant a general wage increase for workers in the southern California plants.

William H. Davis, chairman of the WLB, said that the union demands for general wage increases were refused because to comply with the request would "only lead to a new cycle of wage increases and a new general wage level on the west coast."

Lewis Influence Seen

Although the board denied that the fact that Lewis would be before it soon fighting for a $2 a day increase for his miners had anything to do with the decision, it was admitted privately that the prospect of the coming battle with Lewis motivated the board in denying a general increase for the southern California workers.

The board also recently refused a general wage increase for 180,000 workers in the Big Four meat packing companies in the Chicago area and it was feared that any general increase for the aircraft workers would lead to reopening of that case.

Union leaders, although vigorously protesting the board's action, said that they would abide by it and tell disgruntled aircraft workers not to strike. However, it was feared that there may be some dissatisfaction among many workers, particularly after their bonuses have been spent and they find that their weekly wages are raised only from $1.80 to $3 a week on the basis of a 40-hour week.

BOY AND GIRL HURT AS CARS CRASH HEAD-ON

Betty Lyons, 17, Kingston Route 1, and Dwight Paul Chester, 19, Chillicothe Route 4, are in Chillicothe hospital for treatment of injuries received in a head-on automobile collision on Route 159, just south of Kinnikinnick, Wednesday about 7:30 p. m. Two other persons suffered minor injuries.

Investigation by the state highway patrol disclosed that Chester was traveling toward Chillicothe and collided with the automobile driven by Roy Arledge, on a straight stretch of highway. Judson Speakman, also of Route 4, Chillicothe, was in the car with Arledge.

Miss Lyons suffered deep facial lacerations and Chester has a possible broken nose. Miss Lyons' head went through the shattered windshield at the time of impact. Arledge suffered cuts on one hand and Speakman had minor bruises.

W. H. HOFFMAN WORLD WAR 1 VETERAN, DIES

William Henry (Jake) Hoffman, 48, a member of the Rainbow Division in World War I and decorated for his role as a soldier, died Thursday at 1:45 a. m. in University hospital, Columbus. Mr. Hoffman, who operated a restaurant, lived at 119 East Mill street.

Joining the U. S. Army in 1915, Mr. Hoffman was sent overseas with the A. E. F. in September, 1917. He returned April 25, 1919, after engaging in the Champagne-Marne, Aisne, Marne, St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne, Lunerville and Baccarat sector engagements.

A medal Mr. Hoffman was awarded by the French government for his service in the Argonne fight will probably be buried with him.

Organic heart disease caused Mr. Hoffman's death. He was born in Circleville April 9, 1894, a son of William Henry and Saline Dunkle Hoffman. He married Mary Frieda Kinser, December 23, 1919, his widow surviving in addition to a daughter, Elizabeth Ellen, at home; three brothers, John and Ralph, Circleville, and Edward, Baltimore, Md., and two sisters, Mrs. Clara Clifton, Columbus, and Mrs. Margaret Campbell, Circleville.

Mr. Hoffman had worked for the Container Corporation 29 years.

Funeral services will be Monday at 3 p. m. at Trinity Lutheran church, the Rev. G. L. Troutman officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery soldier's lot by the Albaugh Co. Members of Howard Hall post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will serve as pall bearers and conduct a service at the graveside.

TOTAL DRAFT SEEN AS LIKELY

the Austin-Wadsworth national service act—which provides for a labor draft if necessary—and Sen. Austin (R) Vt. declared that the bill is gaining friends.

"One of the objectives of the national service bill is to let the people know what is necessary and what their liabilities are," said Austin. "When the people understand they will be glad to assume their liabilities. The bill calls for distribution of manpower with design."

Austin asserted that there will be ample manpower if it is properly distributed. He said that Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney had informed the military affairs committee that completion of all military construction in 1943 will release 1,000,000 men for other employment.

Conceding that the Austin-Wadsworth bill cannot be passed in the near future, Austin nevertheless said he was confident the country will come to a national service act.

"The plan can operate voluntarily, and compulsion would only be used where necessary," he said. "We cannot expect 65,000,000 people to get in the right places in the war program unless they know where to go. The bill provides machinery to show them their proper place."

the benefit payments received by farmers should be considered in fixing parity," Fulmer said.

Their inclusion was ordered by President Roosevelt last October following passage of the anti-inflation act, but during debate on the Bankhead bill in the senate last week, members contended that congress had never intended to confer such authority on the President.

The Pace bill to revise the parity formula to include farm labor costs has been bitterly opposed by the administration, and although reported by the house agriculture committee two months ago, has been held up so far by the rules committee.

out the men because Young was still employed at the plant after being expelled by the union.

"Such a situation," Young said, "is damned rotten. But even though I am right, I feel it will be better for my country if I get out of the yard so that the others can come back to work."

His wife, Veronica, whom he married in 1914, and Young haven't much to say about Smith.

"I can't understand why one individual has the right to deny another the right to work," said Mrs. Young.

"That's right," added her husband. "This country is not getting so good to live in if one man can get away with what Smith is getting away with."

Young declared that Smith personally had charged him with union violations and was the only witness against him at his "trial." The business agent, Young said, had no personal knowledge of any of Young's so-called violations but got them second-hand from another union member whom Young refused to name.

What he'd do from now on, Charley Young doesn't exactly know, but he's a rugged chap and still able to do a lot of war work.

"I'm going out and get a pick and shovel job," he snapped. "I am not going to be the cause of navy work being tied up."

What his chances are of getting back into the union, he doesn't know.

"It would be a waste of time to appeal to the International union," he said. "The only way I can get justice would be to have the charges heard by an impartial board, but that's unlikely."

A medal Mr. Hoffman was awarded by the French government for his service in the Argonne fight will probably be buried with him.

Organic heart disease caused Mr. Hoffman's death. He was born in Circleville April 9, 1894, a son of William Henry and Sallie Dunkle Hoffman. He married Mary Frieda Kinser, December 23, 1919, his widow surviving in addition to a daughter, Elizabeth Ellen, at home; three brothers, John and Ralph, Circleville, and Edward, Baltimore, Md., and two sisters, Mrs. Clara Clifton, Columbus, and Mrs. Margaret Campbell, Circleville.

Mr. Hoffman had worked for the Container Corporation 29 years.

Funeral services will be Monday at 3 p. m. at Trinity Lutheran church, the Rev. G. L. Troutman officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery soldier's lot by the Albaugh Co. Members of Howard Hall post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will serve as pall bearers and conduct a service at the graveside.

the benefit payments received by farmers should be considered in fixing parity," Fulmer said.

Their inclusion was ordered by President Roosevelt last October following passage of the anti-inflation act, but during debate on the Bankhead bill in the senate last week, members contended that congress had never intended to confer such authority on the President.

The formula to revise the parity formula to include farm labor costs has been bitterly opposed by the administration, and although reported by the house agriculture committee two months ago, has been held up so far by the rules committee.

out the men because Young was still employed at the plant after being expelled by the union.

"Rotten" Situation

"Such a situation," Young said, "is damned rotten. But even though I am right, I feel it will be better for my country if I get out of the yard so that the others can come back to work."

His wife, Veronica, whom he married in 1914, and Young haven't much to say about Smith.

"I can't understand why one individual has the right to deny another the right to work," said Mrs. Young.

"That's right," added her husband. "This country is not getting so good to live in if one man can get away with what Smith is getting away with."

Young declared that Smith personally had charged him with union violations and was the only witness against him at his "trial."

The business agent, Young said, had no personal knowledge of any of Young's so-called violations but got them second-hand from another union member whom Young refused to name.

What he'll do from now on, Charley Young doesn't exactly know, but he's a rugged chap and still able to do a lot of war work.

"I'm going out and get a pick and shovel job," he snapped. "I am not going to be the cause of navy work being tied up."

What his chances are of getting back into the union, he doesn't know.

"It would be a waste of time to appeal to the International union," he said. "The only way I can get justice would be to have the charges heard by an impartial board, but that's unlikely."

UPSETS ARE SCORED

Lancaster St. Mary's And Marion St. Mary's Fall By Wayside

Two of Pickaway county's basketball cage teams, Pickaway and Ashville, swing into action Thursday evening in the central district class B basketball tournament being contested at Otterbein college gym, Westerville.

Pickaway, county champion, is scheduled at 9 o'clock against Amity, with Ashville to play an hour earlier against Hebron. Tournament followers are favoring both teams to win, thus meeting each other in the second round.

Strangely, during the draw last Monday evening Coach Lawrence Fullen of Ashville pulled Pickaway as his team's first opponent, but tournament managers permitted a re-draw.

Upsets were predominant in the second night's activities, several favored teams, including Lancaster St. Mary's and Marion St. Mary's, falling by the wayside.

Mount Gilead ousted Lancaster in a thrilling 39-35 contest, and University school took the measure of the Marion team, 48 to 43.

Other Wednesday night games saw a powerful Berlin team win 72 to 24 over Prospect, and Edison take the measure of Agosta, 56 to 23.

Many Circleville and Pickaway county fans, who can muster enough gasoline, plan to attend Thursday evening's games.

Climb of Beau Jack, Joe Louis Compared

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, March 4 — The fight game has long been a moulder of men and, in looking over tomorrow night's 12-round battle between Fritz Zivic of Pittsburgh and Augustus Beau Jack, you can't help but notice the effect the last 12 months have had on the latter, a little, unknown boot-black whose fists have catapulted him to national fame.

There is a strange parallel between the stories of the Beau and another colored boy named Joe Louis. The latter was a great fighting machine the night he knocked out James J. Braddock for the world's heavyweight title in 1937. But outside the ring he was a dull, close-mouthed, almost shy individual.

Louis was like that for a long, long time. Then came a night in 1938 when he met Max Schmeling for the second time. There was vengeance in the Brown Bomber's fists, that night, and he harried der Moxie to pieces in a little more than two minutes.

Began to Mingle
A transformation came over the ex-Alabama cotton picker. Louis began to mingle with people. He was amusing in interviews; he began to talk on the radio and, in little more than a year, was a completely different personality.

What was behind the change? The fight mob wondered, argued, and finally decided somewhere in Louis' mind there lurked the suspicion he never would amount to anything until he had erased the stigma of a 12-round kayo by Schmeling in '36.

In fewer words, though he was heavyweight champion, Louis never acted the part until he avenged his humiliation by Schmeling. Then, and only then, did he bother about cultivating a personality.

Beau Jack, all his life, has been an easy-going, colored lad content to work hard and ask little in return. He didn't even learn how to write until a few months ago, and is still learning!

Went Home Alone
The night he fought Tippy Larkin, knocked him stiff and wound up with the world's lightweight title, New York version, he simply dressed and went home by himself. When asked questions, the Beau answered "yes" or "no" and referred everything important to his manager, Chick Wergeles. He was shy, talked only under pressure and, in the gym, acted like a preliminary boy.

Then he fought the same Zivic he meets in a return bout tomorrow night and won all by himself. The beachcombers along Jacobs Beach have been gabbing ever since about the change that has come over the little fellow.

The Beau, in the space of a single month, has transformed himself from a humble youth into a fighting man who walks, talks and acts like what he is—a champion!

Beau Jack has been teaching Emory Jackson, a stable-mate, some of his tricks in recent sessions at the gym—something he would never have attempted in the past. He answers questions; has a new lift to his walk when he strolls around the garden or the famed beach and has even made a speech!

GRECO TO GIVE ALL PURSE FOR AID FOR ARMY

NEW YORK, March 4—Hard-hitting Johnny Greco, Canadian army private, who has been signed for a re-match with Cleo Shans, Los Angeles, will fight gratis so his comrades-in-arms may benefit.

He will donate his entire purse to raising athletic equipment for the Canadian army when he takes on Shans in another Madison Square Garden ten-round on March 26, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced.

Ten percent of the gross receipts or $5,000—whichever is greater—will go to the fund.

Greco slammed out a ten-round decision over Shans last Friday night.

UTICA TO JOIN LOOP

UTICA, N. Y., March 4—Utica was ready today to join the Eastern baseball league if an eighth club can be obtained to fill out the league's membership. Thomas H. Richardson, president of the league, addressed a meeting of Utica sports boosters last night and said that Elmira was nearly ready to rejoin as the eighth team.

Parties of tropical medical specialists, sanitary engineers and other technicians are now in the field in 11 of the American republics, collaborating with health authorities there in putting into operation a vast plan for betterment of health and sanitary conditions throughout the Americas.

FIDDLER McGEE TO KEEP FARM CLASSIFICATION

NEW YORK, March 4—Fiddler Bill McGee, right-handed hurler, will not show up for the 1943 season, the New York Giants announced today. This closely follows the announcement that hard-hitting First Baseman Johnny Mize has been reclassified in 1-A.

McGee has been placed in 3-C by his draft board so that he may work his Hardin, Ill., farm, while Mize is to be inducted within a few weeks.

McGee stated he has put in a request to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis to be immediately placed on the voluntary retired list.

Obtained by the Giants from the St. Louis Cardinals in 1941, McGee appeared in 31 games last season, finishing with a record of six wins and three losses.

Anyway, the birds don't seem worried about freedom of the air, and they have plenty of landing fields.

BIG 10 INDOOR TRACK RECORDS MAY BE NIPPED

CHICAGO, March 4—Four Western Conference indoor track records were threatened today as 200 athletes headed for Chicago to compete in the 33rd annual Big Ten track meet tomorrow afternoon and Saturday night.

Herb Matter of Illinois who last week leaped 23 feet 10 inches in the broad jump threatened to crack the 23 feet 9 1/4 inches set by Lee Farmer of Iowa last year, and Bob Hodgell of Wisconsin was jumping only one eighth of an inch below the conference high jump mark of 6 feet 6 1/4 inches set by Dave Albritton of Ohio State in 1938.

Michigan's Bob Ufer was out to whittle his own 440-yard dash mark of 48.1 seconds. Ufer will face strong competition in Russ Owen of Ohio State who beat him four times outdoors last year.

The half mile record of Indiana's Charlie Hornbostel who set the mark of 1:53.9 in 1933 was threatened by Ralph Pohland of Minnesota who ran a 1:53.6 race at Madison, Wis., three weeks ago.

Michigan was favored to win the meet although Wisconsin was considered a threat to the Wolverines' hopes.

On three other athletic fronts

Big Ten athletes will vie for non-ors this week end. Michigan was favored to win its fifth straight swimming championship in Northwestern's pool with Ohio State holding an outside chance. Purdue will defend its title against a strong bid from Illinois in the wrestling meet at Northwestern, and Chicago challenged Illinois' fencing title.

McNutt Says Regulations Must Be Altered Before Call Is Issued

EARLY ORDER STILL HOLDS

Next Three Or Four Months Probably Will Bring General Summons

Although the drafting of fathers may become general throughout the country within the next three or four months, War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt today stated that this drastic action will not come without prior announcement from Washington and specific orders to local boards.

McNutt sought to reassure married men with families recognized as dependent that they will not be drafted so long as present Selective Service regulations hold.

Instructions sent out by the National Selective Service administration to its local boards prohibiting drafting of men with dependent children are still in effect, he said.

"The only men with children who are being selected for induction at the present time," McNutt continued, "are those in whose cases the dependency was acquired after December 8, 1941, or at a time when selection was imminent."

Authority Needed
Induction of other fathers cannot take place until Selective Service headquarters changes its regulations—until there is direct authorization by national headquarters.

However, it was learned, induction of these fathers will almost certainly become general within the next three to four months.

Both WMC head McNutt and Selective Service Director Hershey have repeatedly stated that the end of the pool of single men is now in sight and that married men will have to be taken.

"We are scraping the bottom of the barrel on single men," McNutt said in a recent radio address to the nation. "We now find ourselves with our physically-fit pool shrunk to a point where it is not very much greater than the number to be selected in 1943."

Some Fathers Called
McNutt admitted today that "because of varying conditions in local board areas, as well as in different states, it has been necessary to call registrants with dependents in some states, while single men still were available in others."

It was also necessary to call some married men with recognized dependents "in local board areas in some states before all other local dependents in the same state had exhausted their pools of single men," McNutt said.

However, he said, in general, "those registrants having wives and children, or children only, with whom they maintain a bona fide home, and who were married before December 8, 1941, and at a time when selection was not imminent, may not be inducted through Selective Service until there is direct authorization by national headquarters."

The recent "work-or-fight" order which put married men in certain non-essential industries in a non-deferrable classification "primarily indicated which men with families will have to be inducted first when men with families are called," McNutt said.

Thus, apparently even men in the non-essential industries will not be called until Selective Service announces a change in its rules.

COUNCIL VOTES CHARGE BOOST AGAINST C. C. OF A. IN CHILlicothe

Council voted Wednesday evening to increase charges being made against Container Corporation of America for treating its sewerage, city officials declaring that the industry is paying too small a share of the bill at the plant while using it much more than any other industry.

All other charges being assessed for industry and individuals remain the same as those being paid at present.

The ordinance fixing new rates was passed unanimously under suspension of rules after the measure was read for the second time. The bill had been in the hands of the service committee for several weeks.

During the last year the Container plant paid the city $275 monthly, but the new ordinance boosts that figure to $375. A survey of figures shows that the cost of treating strawboard wastes during the last year was $800 above the amount paid to the city.

Rates charged to canneries and dairies will remain as they were. Canners pay 10 cents for each 100 cases of No. 2 cans based on the number of cases of goods processed during each quarter each year. Dairies pay one cent for each 1,000 pounds of raw milk or cream intake with an annual minimum of $12 established.

President John Goeller appointed Mr. Wallace to serve as chairman of the finance committee during illness of Frank A. Lynch. Councilman J. Donald Mason was named an additional member of the committee.

UNITED WE STAND

THE attitude of the other American republics regarding this war is, with the exception of Argentina, very heartening. They have all helped with their loyalty and some have given large material help. Development of a great group of free and cooperative nations proceeds faster and means more than ever before.

An inspiring message came just the other day from Peru. President Manuel Prado pledges the entire strength and resources of his country to the war effort of the United Nations, explaining that his people adhere to the Atlantic charter "because they believe in a society where there is neither oppressor nor oppressed." He adds:

"Peru is straining every nerve to speed victory for the United Nations. Every asset we have has been granted to the cause of the democracies. We have given to the limit in raw materials of all kinds, and in transportation by land, air or sea, and we are ready to supply any other help that may be asked in the future."

The total material benefit may not be great in comparison with the vast requirements of this war. But it helps considerably, and the warm spirit of cooperation helps still more. The New World is being knitted together far more strongly than ever before, according to the fine old formula, "each for all and all for each."

POLITICKING

THE main trouble at Washington these days is too much politics. And nobody has a monopoly of it. Republicans and Democrats are both plugging their games and strutting their stuff and trying to line things up neatly for the next big campaign. The powerful farm and labor groups are fighting for still more power, and jockeying for positions. Thus Congress operates at about half its possible efficiency and the whole country is pulled and hauled by ambitious and over-zealous leaders.

It doesn't seem to occur to some of the leaders that there is a war in progress which has first claim to the loyalty of all citizens and groups, and that if the war isn't handled well and won as promptly as possible there will be immense grief and loss for everybody. The times demand steady concentration of all good citizens on the main issue. Individuals and groups taking care of that job first of all will find that it is the best way to take care of themselves.

See by the prints that the Ohio legislature probably will provide for the parole of life termers after they have served approximately 15 years. Life termers generally have been sent up for murder. CHARLIE WILSON'S EFFICIENCY

WASHINGTON — It now looks as if the air cooling system which were to be yanked out of the Senate, House of Representatives and various government departments would not be yanked out at all, and the solons could keep reasonably cool this Summer.

Reason for this is new WPB Production Boss Charlie Wilson, recent head of General Electric. Wilson has not changed these plans because of any special regard for the comfort of Congressmen. The change briefly boils down to this. The air cooling systems were needed because of their compressors, for compressors are one great bottleneck of war production today.

Compressors are used in making synthetic rubber, high octane gasoline, and other vital war materials. And before Wilson took over WPB production the ordering of compressors was pretty much of a mess. There was no coordination. The Navy, the Army had bid against each other. The Maritime Commission and Lend-Lease had bid against them. Each had gone to the best compressor companies, and factories were loaded with orders that would not be finished for some years.

So Wilson called in all the compressor companies, and had them line up their orders. Then he told them to add extra shifts to their own plants and subcontract to about 300 smaller plants.

Wilson talks the language of a manufacturer, not of a banker or Wall Street broker (the WPB, Army and Navy are loaded down with both). The compressor manufacturers knew that if they didn't produce, Wilson would demand their designs and set up competitors who would be in business against them after the war. That is the last thing they want.

Wilson didn't have to make any threats. They understood his language. He is getting the compressors.

NEW CONVERTS TO NEPOTISM

Most freshmen Congressmen prefer to be seen and not heard, but there's nothing backward about them where nepotism is concerned.

Here are a few of the Congressional yearlings, most of them Republicans, who are drawing extra pay checks for members of their families:

Representative Alvin E. O'Konski, Republican, of Wisconsin—His wife, Veronica H. O'Konski, is his secretary at $3,900 a year.

Representative James C. Auchincloss, Republican, of New Jersey—His wife, Lee Auchincloss, gets $3,200 a year.

Representative Henderson Carson, Republican, of Ohio—His wife, Ella Carson, is on the payroll, at $1,700 a year.

Representative Norris Poulson, Republican, of California— Pays his daughter, Erna, a clerk, $1,370 a year.

Representative John P. Newsome, Democrat, of Alabama—His wife, Lulu H. Newsome, is on the payroll, at $1,100 a year.

Representative James Gallagher, Republican, of Pennsylvania — Pays his son, James Gallagher, Jr., a clerk, $1,250 a year.

DIET AND HEALTH

Many Ills Spring From Body's Shock Absorbers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A RECENT article I said that the most frequent cause of pain in the shoulder was inflammation of the subdeltoid bursa, which lies just between the end of the collar bone and the shoulder blade. In conversation the other day with a sufferer from this complaint, he said that the doctor told him that this was the only bursa in the body. He must have misunderstood the doctor, because these little cushions are located at any convenient place where a cushion would be useful.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There is one under each elbow, several in each wrist, one over each knee cap, one or two between the heads of each toe, several around the foot and one over the heel—to mention only a few.

All of them can get into trouble and become inflamed by the same causes as produce a subdeltoid bursitis. Since they are designed to absorb shock at pressure points, they very frequently get injured and become painful as a result of this inflammation.

Housemaid's Knee
The most famous of these pressure traumas is the condition known as housemaid's knee, which is simply an inflammation of the pre-patellar bursa—the one which is located just over the knee cap. Jerome K. Jerome made great fun of housemaid's knee in "Three Men in a Boat" but it really exists and it really exists in housemaids, although with the growing scarcity of this species it probably is not as frequent as it used to be.

A fellow who leans on his elbow a great deal is likely to get an olecranon bursitis; also people who are subject to gout are likely to get it.

The bursae of the foot are so numerous because the foot takes all the punishment of weight-bearing and of the complicated movements which must be carried out smoothly in order to make an efficient organ that functions without pain.

The bursa of the back of the heel most often gives trouble. It is located just where the back of a low-heeled shoe hits and if the shoe is at all loose, the bursa is rubbed into inflammation. In former days these painful heels were supposed to be due to a bony outgrowth on the heel.

The reason for this is that if a person has a painful heel and an x-ray is made, the bony outgrowth shows up in about 90 per cent of cases. But as a matter of fact it also shows up in people who do not have painful heels. So orthopedic surgeons had to look for another cause and they eventually have found the cause of most cases of painful heel in inflammation of the bursa in this region.

Nearly all the tendons that go along the bottom of the foot have bursae to protect them and so do the toes at their base, where weight bearing must be cushioned; otherwise the heads of the bones would crunch against each other and create a very disagreeable sensation. However, if the bursae become inflamed there is a very disagreeable sensation created also.

The treatment of all these conditions is very much the same. If the pressure or irritation is taken off, they automatically return to normal. If a focal infection is the cause of the inflammation, that can be treated. Rest and heat are the best remedies, but the rest should be absolute and continued for several days.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
E. S.: I am thinking of putting some chicory in my coffee. Some people have told me not to do so, as it is harmful. Is this true and if so, in what way?

Answer: No, chicory does no harm organically, but it will be awfully bad for your disposition.

Where Contentment Lies

SUSAN SHERIDAN

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX
THE IDEA that the visitor that snowy afternoon was David hadn't occurred to Kay. She hadn't seen him in months. She wondered what possessed him to come now. She was so lonely that the thought of seeing an old friend was an exciting one. And surely David was that. An old and a dear friend.

She went through Jake's music room into the living room. "Hello, David," she said, holding out her hand. "This is a pleasant surprise."

"Hello yourself," David rose quickly from the deep arm chair, thrust his pipe into an ash tray, walked across the floor to greet Kay. "He looks tired," she thought. "That's because of the Christmas rush. He looks utterly tired, with the lines around his eyes, his forehead, the side of his mouth sunk deeper than ever."

But he was smiling at her and his eyes were glowing. "I must say you're looking well; maybe that doctor did know what he was talking about. I've never seen you with color like this."

"That's the wind and the snow," she said with an easy laugh. "I must hear all the news. You sit down and I'll make some tea and then we'll have a real confab."

When they had finished their tea, Kay threw some more logs on the fire and lit a cigaret. "One more thing before we get started. Jake's in New York and I've got to call him and tell him not to come home until the snow plough's been through."

"In New York? Do you mean to tell me he goes to New York and leaves you all alone in an out-of-the-way place like this?" He was incensed.

"Now, don't be silly, David. I don't think anything of it. You sound like a fussy old grandmother." She wanted to ignore his indignation.

"How often does this happen?" he demanded.

"Oh, not often. And it can't be helped, so just you don't start carrying on." She didn't feel like telling him what Jake was doing. David was so successful that he was apt to be intolerant of people who hadn't landed on their feet yet. She was proud of Jake. Let David hear about what was taking Jake to town when he read the notices of Jake's first concert.

"Of course, it's no business of mine," he said, "but I think it's outrageous. All the more reason why you've got to listen to what I've come here to say."

"I can hardly help listening. There's no place I can get away from you here, so as soon as I've made my call I'll be all ears."

Jake wasn't in when she called, but Het said she'd see that he got the message.

"Are you going to be all right?" Het asked. "Why don't you get out while you can and take a train to town. If it's a real blizzard you might be snowed in for days."

"It isn't as bad as all that."

They're very quick about getting the roads cleared. And I'd probably have some trouble getting into town tonight. Tell Jake I'll call him again tomorrow. Good-night."

She didn't mention David's being there. She knew Het would believe that it was quite by accident that he had hit a day when Jake wasn't home. But Jake got upset so easily these days he could be extremely unreasonable, and she didn't want to risk bringing one on of his angry, silent spells. She sighed a little. The last few months had had their trying moments.

But she was smiling when she came back into the living room. "You'd better say what's on your mind quickly, because the snow is falling so fast that your car will be buried in a little while."

"It doesn't matter. You don't imagine that I'm going to leave you here alone, do you? Even if I could get the car out, which I don't think I can."

Kay walked restlessly around the room. "David, I don't mean to be inhospitable, but—"

"Now you're the one who's being silly," he said. "In the first place, I'm not going to risk getting stuck in a snow drift and spending the night in the car. My time is too valuable for me to waste any of it in the hospital with pneumonia. In the second place, it's more than likely that you'll be without a telephone, electricity. You may be glad I'm here tomorrow, even if you don't think so now," he added, a little sarcastic.

David was stubborn. This reminded her of arguments they'd had before. She might as well save her breath.

"All right, you win," she admitted. "Don't you think we'd better try to get your car into the barn. Then we won't have to dig it out tomorrow."

"A good idea, still an executive, I see." He looked at her.

She gave him a pair of Jake's galoshes and an old coat. They both took shovels and cleared the snow away from the barn doors, pushed most of it off the car. It was inches deep on the top already. Fortunately the car was so heavy that it was possible to get it through the snow. They shut the barn doors with relief.

David stood still a moment with his face turned up to the snow. "Lord, it feels good. So fresh and clean." He picked up a handful and threw a snowball at her. She ran into the house, shrieking with laughter.

They had dinner in front of the fire. Then David helped her with the dishes.

"Ever washed a dish before in your life?" she asked him.

"No, I guess I haven't," he acknowledged. "But if you can learn, so can I."

"I had to," she said simply.

"There might have been some reason for this six months ago, but surely you're well now. There's no point in carrying on this nonsense any longer." He hung up the dish towel on the rack. Kay emptied the dish pan, gave the sink a final wipe.

She looked around the kitchen. Yes, everything was put away and her kitchen was immaculately neat. It was a nice room with its warm yellow walls, its neat striped curtains that she had just made. She had become very fond of it.

She told David to go ahead. When he had opened the door into the hall she turned the light out and followed him into the living room.

"David, please don't let's discuss why I'm here and whether I should stay." She sat down cross-legged before the fire, smoking a cigaret.

"I have to discuss it. That's what I came up here for. When you left the store I told you I expected you back in six months and I meant it. Your place hasn't been filled and we need you. If I had found you looking sick, unable to work, I wouldn't have suggested that you come back. But you're obviously fit. And this business is absurd," he said, waving his hand to indicate the house, the country. "You can't be happy, a brilliant woman like you washing dishes and hemming dish towels." She had taken up her sewing without thinking. A stupid mistake.

"And," he went on, "maybe Jake likes it, but it seems funny to me that he'd go off to New York and leave you here alone. It's no concern of mine. I'm not prying. But on the face of it this little experiment seems to have served its purpose. For both your sakes, I think you should give it up."

Kay didn't know how to answer him. For one wild moment she thought how much she'd love going back to work. But she showed that thought aside roughly. The question was how she could convince David without giving Jake away.

"Appearances often are deceiving, David," she said soberly. "I look well to you because I am so much better than I was when you last saw me. But the doctor says it will be another six or nine months before he'll discharge me as cured." She wished she could drop this health story, now and forever. She was heartily tired of it. But she had to drag it up just this once more.

"Very well, then. We can't jeopardize your health, of course. I guess if we've struggled along with you this long, a few months more won't matter."

He began telling her what had been going on while she was away, and they talked until after 2 o'clock. Then she made up a bed for him on the sofa. He valiantly assured her that he'd be very comfortable, although the sofa was a good six inches too short for his long legs. But the guest room seemed a little too close for comfort.

CHARLIE WILSON'S EFFICIENCY

WASHINGTON — It now looks as if the air cooling system which were to be yanked out of the Senate, House of Representatives and various government departments would not be yanked out at all, and the solons could keep reasonably cool this Summer.

Reason for this is new WPB Production Boss Charlie Wilson, recent head of General Electric. Wilson has not changed these plans because of any special regard for the comfort of Congressmen. The change briefly boils down to this. The air cooling systems were needed because of their compressors, for compressors are one great bottleneck of war production today.

Compressors are used in making synthetic rubber, high octane gasoline, and other vital war materials. And before Wilson took over WPB production the ordering of compressors was pretty much of a mess. There was no coordination. The Navy, the Army had bid against each other. The Maritime Commission and Lend-Lease had bid against them. Each had gone to the best compressor companies, and factories were loaded with orders that would not be finished for some years.

So Wilson called in all the compressor companies, and had them line up their orders. Then he told them to add extra shifts to their own plants and subcontract to about 300 smaller plants.

Wilson took the language of a manufacturer, not of a banker or Wall Street broker (the WPB, Army and Navy are loaded down with both). The compressor manufacturers knew that if they didn't produce, Wilson would demand their designs and set up competitors who would be in business against them after the war. That is the last thing they want.

Wilson didn't have to make any threats. They understood his language. He is getting the compressors.

NEW CONVERTS TO NEPOTISM

Most freshmen Congressmen prefer to be seen and not heard, but there's nothing backward about them where nepotism is concerned.

Here are a few of the Congressional yearlings, most of them Republicans, who are drawing extra pay checks for members of their families:

Representative Alvin E. O'Konski, Republican, of Wisconsin—His wife, Veronica H. O'Konski, is his secretary at $3,900 a year.

Representative James C. Auchincloss, Republican, of New Jersey—His wife, Lee Auchincloss, gets $3,200 a year.

Representative Henderson Carson, Republican, of Ohio—His wife, Ella Carson, is on the payroll, at $1,700 a year.

Representative Norris Poulson, Republican, of California— Pays his daughter, Erna, a clerk, $1,370 a year.

Representative John P. Newsome, Democrat, of Alabama—His wife, Lulu H. Newsome, is on the payroll, at $1,100 a year.

Representative James Gallagher, Republican, of Pennsylvania — Pays his son, James Gallagher, Jr., a clerk, $1,250 a year.

Many Ills Spring From Body's Shock Absorbers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A RECENT article I said that the most frequent cause of pain in the shoulder was inflammation of the subdeltoid bursa, which lies just between the end of the collar bone and the shoulder blade. In conversation the other day with a sufferer from this complaint, he said that the doctor told him that this was the only bursa in the body. He must have misunderstood the doctor, because these little cushions are located at any convenient place where a cushion would be useful.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There is one under each elbow, several in each wrist, one over each knee cap, one or two between the heads of each toe, several around the foot and one over the heel—to mention only a few.

All of them can get into trouble and become inflamed by the same causes as produce a subdeltoid bursitis. Since they are designed to absorb shock at pressure points, they very frequently get injured and become painful as a result of this inflammation.

Housemaid's Knee

The most famous of these pressure traumas is the condition known as housemaid's knee, which is simply an inflammation of the pre-patellar bursa—the one which is located just over the knee cap. Jerome K. Jerome made great fun of housemaid's knee in "Three Men in a Boat" but it really exists and it really exists in housemaids, although with the growing scarcity of this species it probably is not as frequent as it used to be.

A fellow who leans on his elbow a great deal is likely to get an olecranon bursitis; also people who are subject to gout are likely to get it.

The bursae of the foot are so numerous because the foot takes all the punishment of weight-bearing and of the complicated movements which must be carried out smoothly in order to make an efficient organ that functions without pain.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

THE IDEA that the visitor that snowy afternoon was David hadn't occurred to Kay. She hadn't seen him in months. She wondered what possessed him to come now. She was so lonely that the thought of seeing an old friend was an exciting one. And surely David was that. An old and a dear friend.

She went through Jake's music room into the living room. "Hello, David," she said, holding out her hand. "This is a pleasant surprise."

"Hello yourself," David rose quickly from the deep arm chair, thrust his pipe into an ash tray, walked across the floor to greet Kay. "He looks tired," she thought. "That's because of the Christmas rush. He looks utterly tired, with the lines around his eyes, his forehead, the side of his mouth sunk deeper than ever."

But he was smiling at her and his eyes were glowing. "I must say you're looking well; maybe that doctor did know what he was talking about. I've never seen you with color like this."

"That's the wind and the snow," she said with an easy laugh. "I must hear all the news. You sit down and I'll make some tea and then we'll have a real confab."

When they had finished their tea, Kay threw some more logs on the fire and lit a cigarette. "One more thing before we get started. Jake's in New York and I've got to call him and tell him not to come home until the snow plough's been through."

"In New York? Do you mean to tell me he goes to New York and leaves you all alone in an out-of-the-way place like this?" He was incensed.

"Now, don't be silly, David. I don't think anything of it. You sound like a fussy old grandmother." She wanted to ignore his indignation.

"How often does this happen?" he demanded.

"Oh, not often. And it can't be helped, so just you don't start carrying on." She didn't feel like telling him what Jake was doing. David was so successful that he was apt to be intolerant of people who hadn't landed on their feet yet. She was proud of Jake. Let David hear about what was taking Jake to town when he read the notices of Jake's first concert.

"Of course, it's no business of mine," he said, "but I think it's outrageous. All the more reason why you've got to listen to what I've come here to say."

"I can hardly help listening. There's no place I can get away from you here, so as soon as I've made my call I'll be all ears."

Jake wasn't in when she called, but Het said she'd see that he got the message.

"Are you going to be all right?" Het asked. "Why don't you get out while you can and take a train to town. If it's a real blizzard you might be snowed in for days."

"It isn't as bad as all that."

They're very quick about getting the roads cleared. And I'd probably have some trouble getting into town tonight. Tell Jake I'll call him again tomorrow. Good-night."

She didn't mention David's being there. She knew Het would believe that it was quite by accident that he had hit a day when Jake wasn't home. But Jake got upset so easily these days he could be extremely unreasonable, and she didn't want to risk bringing one on of his angry, silent spells. She sighed a little. The last few months had had their trying moments.

But she was smiling when she came back into the living room. "You'd better say what's on your mind quickly, because the snow is falling so fast that your car will be buried in a little while."

"It doesn't matter. You don't imagine that I'm going to leave you here alone, do you? Even if I could get the car out, which I don't think I can."

Kay walked restlessly around the room. "David, I don't mean to be inhospitable, but—"

"Now you're the one who's being silly," he said. "In the first place, I'm not going to risk getting stuck in a snow drift and spending the night in the car. My time is too valuable for me to waste any of it in the hospital with pneumonia. In the second place, it's more than likely that you'll be without a telephone, electricity. You may be glad I'm here tomorrow, even if you don't think so now," he added, a little sarcastic.

David was stubborn. This reminded her of arguments they'd had before. She might as well save her breath.

"All right, you win," she admitted. "Don't you think we'd better try to get your car into the barn. Then we won't have to dig it out tomorrow."

"A good idea, still an executive, I see." He looked at her fondly.

She gave him a pair of Jake's galoshes and an old coat. They both took shovels and cleared the snow away from the barn doors, pushed most of it off the car. It was inches deep on the top already. Fortunately the car was so heavy that it was possible to get it through the snow. They shut the barn doors with relief.

David stood still a moment with his face turned up to the snow. "Lord, it feels good. So fresh and clean." He picked up a handful and threw a snowball at her. She ran into the house, shrieking with laughter.

They had dinner in front of the fire. Then David helped her with the dishes.

"Ever washed a dish before in your life?" she asked him.

"No, I guess I haven't," he acknowledged. "But if you can learn, so can I."

"It had to," she said simply.

"There might have been some reason for this six months ago, but surely you're well now. There's no point in carrying on this nonsense any longer." He hung up the dish towel on the rack. Kay emptied the dish pan, gave the sink a final wipe.

She looked around the kitchen. Yes, everything was put away and her kitchen was immaculately neat. It was a nice room with its warm yellow walls, its neat striped curtains that she had just made. She had become very fond of it.

She told David to go ahead. When he had opened the door into the hall she turned the light out and followed him into the living room.

"David, please don't let's discuss why I'm here and whether I should stay." She sat down cross-legged before the fire, smoking a cigarette.

"I have to discuss it. That's what I came up here for. When you left the store I told you I expected you back in six months and I meant it. Your place hasn't been filled and we need you. If I had found you looking sick, unable to work, I wouldn't have suggested that you come back. But you're obviously fit. And this business is absurd," he said, waving his hand to indicate the house, the country. "You can't be happy, a brilliant woman like you washing dishes and hemming dish towels." She had taken up her sewing without thinking. A stupid mistake.

"And," he went on, "maybe Jake likes it, but it seems funny to me that he'd go off to New York and leave you here alone. It's no concern of mine. I'm not prying. But on the face of it this little experiment seems to have served its purpose. For both your sakes, I think you should give it up."

Kay didn't know how to answer him. For one wild moment she thought how much she'd love going back to work. But she shoved that thought aside roughly. The question was how she could convince David without giving Jake away.

"Appearances often are deceiving," David said soberly. "I look well to you because I am so much better than I was when you last saw me. But the doctor says it will be another six or nine months before he'll discharge me as cured." She wished she could drop this health story, now and forever. She was heartily tired of it. But she had to drag it up just this once more.

"Very well, then. We can't jeopardize your health, of course. I guess if we've struggled along with you this long, a few months more won't matter."

He began telling her what had been going on while she was away, and they talked until after 2 o'clock. Then she made up a bed for him on the sofa. He valiantly assured her that he'd be very comfortable, although the sofa was a good six inches too short for his long legs. But the guest room seemed a little too close for comfort.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, March 4

THE AUGURIES are for a fairly successful and interesting day, particularly if lagging affairs are subjected to revamping. New projects are also favored, with the possibility of employers or financial backing being required. In all moves it might be well to be alert to small deceptions. Keep open and above board in everything.

Those whose birthday it is may count on favorable conditions for launching new projects. Fresh, shrewd and sagacious change or revamping of plans and procedures along enterprising lines may be due for gratifying success. Literary matters should flourish.

Indoor Planting for Outdoor Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

ONE CAN nudge Nature and get a head start for a Victory garden by growing plants indoors for outdoor planting. Four to six weeks can be gained by sowing seeds indoors over those sown outdoors. Elaborate or expensive equipment is not necessary for indoor planting. Since only simple equipment and tools are needed for starting plants indoors, the foresighted Victory gardener will gather these together in readiness for the time when the seeds arrive.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the necessary equipment for seed sowing and transplanting is: (1) soil screen, (2) tanner, (3) seed flat, (4) clay pots, (5) trowel, (6) wooden labels, (7) glass for covering flats, (8) dibble, (9) common spoon.

NO RATIONING YET OF BEAUTIFUL FILM STARLETS!

HOLLYWOOD may be feeling the effects of the shortage of male stars, but there certainly doesn't seem to be a dearth of feminine beauty among the up-and-coming girls who hope for stardom. Typical of the current crop of starlets who already have dainty feet on the bottom rung of the movie ladder are these three, all of whom have recently started to make their marks in the studios. Reclining beauty, upper left, is Frances Gifford. The "cheesecake" touch is lent by Dolores Moran, upper right, while Frances Gifford displays her glamor to best advantage, below. (International)

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Indoor Planting for Outdoor Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY Released by Central Press Association

ONE CAN nudge Nature and get a head start for a Victory garden by growing plants indoors for outdoor planting. Four to six weeks can be gained by sowing seeds indoors over those sown outdoors. Elaborate or expensive equipment is not necessary for indoor planting. Since only simple equipment and tools are needed for starting plants indoors, the foresighted Victory gardener will gather these together in readiness for the time when the seeds arrive.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the necessary equipment for seed sowing and transplanting is: (1) soil screen, (2) tamping, (3) seed flat, (4) clay pots, (5) trowel, (6) wooden labels, (7) glass for covering flats, (8) dibble, (9) common spoon.

While pots or pans can be used to prepare the seed bed, wooden flats are preferable since they do not dry out so readily. The standard garden flat is 3 inches deep, 18 inches long and 12 inches wide. This size is practical because it is easy to handle even when filled with earth. The bottom of the flat can be in one piece with holes bored in it for drainage purposes, or it can be a slat bottom with spaces for drainage.

It is not necessary to have rich soil in which to plant seeds indoors, but it must be well broken up and porous, to allow water and air to pass through it readily. Such a soil can be made by mixing equal parts of beach or builders' sand and a good loam or garden soil.

A screen or sieve, as illustrated, is helpful in breaking up the soil particles of the desired size.

SPANISH DAGGER AT U. S. BACK

Here is the lowdown on the visit of Franco's special representative, ex-Spanish Foreign Minister Beigbeder, to this country.

Franco's regular representative, Ambassador Juan Cardenas, has been sending him what he wanted to hear, rather than the truth about the way the American people have put their hearts into the war. Cardenas had emphasized the clash of personalities and inefficiency of war production which get into the headlines but is not the general rule.

When U. S. officials learned of this, they conceived the idea of bringing a special Franco envoy to the U. S. A. to get the real picture. Actually it was the War Department, not the State Department, which hatched the inspiration and which is taking him on a tour of war plants and Army posts to drink in the real spirit of the war effort.

Note: Many high-up officials here believe Franco is an opportunist who, regardless of pledges, will jump whichever way he sees the war going in the Spring. He could, if he wished, plunge a dagger into the back of U. S. forces in North Africa. Beigbeder has a background of friendship for the United States.

FINLAND'S DEFEAT

After some two years of dreary fighting against the Russians and British, the Finns are right back where they started.

Diplomatic dispatches reveal that Russia has now offered Finland the following peace terms:

1. A border between the two countries similar to that established by the treaty of 1940. This was after the Russo-Finnish war, from which Russia emerged victorious.

2. The Russians also demand certain political changes in Finland, particularly the establishment of a government friendly to Russia. This would definitely exclude both Mannerheim and Tanner.

American observers may make a counter suggestion, modifying these terms somewhat, to make them more palatable to Finland.

The suggestion is that two points of vital importance to the Finns, which have been held by Russia since the 1940 settlement, should be returned to Finland.

These are: (1) Viborg, a city northwest of Leningrad, now shot to pieces, of no earthly use to the Russians, but with strong sentimental attachments to the Finns.

(2) Hango, an island in the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, described as "the cork to Helsinki," and which, if held by any foreign power, would bottle up the Capital of Finland.

U. S. officials believe the Finns will have to retreat from their almost fantastic belief that they are emerging victorious from this war. If much more time passes without a settlement, the Russians will be free to resume the war with Finland, and to take what they want. So a settlement is better now.

This is the theory being pressed upon the Finns by the U. S. Government, which has offered its "good offices" for peace.

Superintendent of Berger Hospital Resigns

ORIGINAL STAFF MEMBER LEAVES POST APRIL 1

Mrs. Elizabeth Lumpe Wins Praise Of Council For Excellent Work

COUNCIL FACES PROBLEM

Two More Nurses May Leave Soon For War Service—Replacements Scarce

Resignation of Mrs. Elizabeth Lumpe as superintendent of Berger hospital has been submitted to Safety Director E. W. Weller. The resignation becomes effective April 1.

Mrs. Lumpe, who has been superintendent for the last several years and a member of the nursing staff since the hospital was opened in the Summer of 1930, asks that she continue to be considered a member of the nursing staff but that she be granted a leave of absence of several months. She explained to Mr. Weller that she needs a rest.

Mr. Weller met with councilmen in an informal session Wednesday evening in the office of Solicitor Joe W. Adkins prior to council's regular meeting to discuss the changes necessary at the hospital when Mrs. Lumpe gives up her position. No announcement was made concerning the safety director's plans for operation of the hospital.

Mrs. Lumpe, the former Elizabeth Goodchild, has provided the hospital an excellent administration, councilmen declared, and all agreed that she deserves a leave.

Question of maintaining a sufficient nursing staff at the hospital is an important one, Mr. Weller informed councilmen that at least two members of the present staff expect soon to enter service as army or navy nurses. Where replacement will be obtained isn't known since the nursing situation everywhere is similar to that in Circleville.

The hospital reported a busy month in February when collections totaled $2,240.99 and expenditures were $2,992.81.

During the month 89 persons received treatment at the institution, there were 18 births, no deaths and eight operations with 346 days of care listed.

Expenses included $337.10 for provisions, $96.65 for laundry; $222.37 for fuel and light; $504.37 for medical and surgical supplies; $1,443.86 for employees' salaries; $145 for superintendent's salary; $54.56 for repairs, and $189 for other supplies.

HAROLD KNEECE HELD IN INDIANA ON CITY CHARGE

Circleville police were informed Wednesday night that Harold Kneece, 17, a former Circleville youth, is under arrest in Washington, Ind., and will be held for Circleville authorities if they want him. Chief W. F. McCrady said that he is awaiting information from Indiana concerning whether the youth will waive extradition to face charges of check forgery.

Chief McCrady has two warrants on file here against young Kneece for checks of $16 and $9 given on two local business firms last August.

How he came to be arrested in the Hoosier town was not told to local authorities.

NAVY SEEKING LOCAL BOYS FOR SPECIAL DUTY

High school boys of Circleville and Pickaway county who can pass rigid physical and mental examinations are being given an opportunity to enter the U. S. navy's new college training program. The navy in sending information concerning the program to high school principals announced that boys who enroll will be eligible for commissions at the end of their schooling. The new program is called V-12.

Information and application blanks for the training are available for all boys of the district.

A boy to enroll must be 17 but not yet 20. High school students, boys in preparatory schools, others who have been graduated but are not in school, and boys who are seeking a college education are sought by the navy for the officer training course.

Youths enrolling must have 18-20 vision in each eye, must be unmarried and promise to stay that way until commissioned.

Enrollees will be assigned to various colleges throughout the country. Regular navy discipline will prevail.

Since school men must make reports at the earliest possible moment to the navy department it is important that youths wishing to enroll consult the principal of their school at once.

Already one Pickaway township youth has received notice from the naval aviation cadet selection board in Detroit that he has been accepted. He is Kenneth Eugene Wolford, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wolford, Circleville Route 1.

Young Wolford, a star of the county championship basketball team, has three brothers already in service. He will not be called for active duty until he is graduated from Pickaway school in the Spring.

Young Wolford will then begin the 16-months flight training course which is designed to enable him to win his wings of gold and a commission as ensign in the U. S. naval reserve or as a second lieutenant in the Marine corps reserve.

ASSIGNMENTS OF LOCAL YOUTHS ARE DISCLOSED

Designations of eight more Circleville and Pickaway county draftees who recently were sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., were disclosed Thursday by the assignment center.

Milo Mack Wise and Richard Brintlinger of Circleville were sent to Miami, Fla., for air corps training.

Paul Kochensparger and Wayne E. Riley, also of Circleville, went to Camp Haan, Cal.

Harry D. Wintough of Circleville and John Edward Crawford of Orient RFD were assigned to the air corps reception center at St. Petersburg, Fla.

William A. Thornton and Leonard Mumaw, both of Circleville, have been sent to Camp Swift, Texas.

G. D. PHILLIPS NOMINATED TO LEAD ROTARY

Dr. G. D. Phillips, Beverly road, was nominated Thursday to become the next president of Circleville Rotary club. Election is scheduled at Rotary's meeting Thursday, March 11, with the new officers to take their positions July 1.

Frank Fischer is serving at present as president of the club. Dr. Phillips has been serving as vice-president.

Other nominations included Paul Johnson and I. W. Kinsey, vice-president; C. T. Gilmore and Karl Mason, secretary; Herman Hill and E. S. Neuding, treasurer, and directors, two to be elected, Frank E. Barnhill, Eldred Cayce, Norbert Cochran, Leslie D. May and Russell Palm.

The club was reminded at the Thursday meeting in Pickaway Arms of the first of the series of Institutes of International Understanding which will be conducted next Wednesday in Circleville high school building.

During the month the mayor collected $50 in licenses, $8.70 in costs and $810 in forfeited bonds, a total of $868.70.

Several persons were arrested during the month on driving when intoxicated charges, the mayor pointed out, forfeiting $100 bonds in each instance.

A normal month runs between $200 and $300.

What It's All About! Upon A Honeymoon!

WHILE ATTEMPTING to get a story for American newspapers on the forthcoming marriage of Miss Katharine Butt-Smith, of Philadelphia, to Baron von Luber (Walter Slezak), Correspondent Patrick O'Toole (Cary Grant), in Vienna, discovers that Miss Butt-Smith is, in reality, Katie O'Hara (Ginger Rogers), former American dancer, and that the Baron had something to do with Hitler's easy invasion of Austria. So when Pat is appointed a short-wave newscaster to America, he decides to stick close to the Baron. Sticking close to the Baroness offers an interesting prospect as well. He meets her by pretending to be a dress stylist come to give her a fitting.

Katie and the Baron are married en route to Warsaw. Pat shows up there, too, and when General Borelski (Albert Basserman), high military official of Poland, is mysteriously murdered just as the German invasion starts, Pat has little trouble in convincing Katie that her affable husband is in reality a dangerous man.

Even as Pat is sending a short-wave warning to America that Poland has been betrayed from within, the bombing of Warsaw starts. The Baron is arrested before the invading army moves in, and Katie and Pat are thrown together in a mutual attempt to get out of the country.

Katie reveals her true quality to Pat when she swaps her passport with that of a maid in the hotel who is finding it difficult to flee with her two small children because they are Jewish.

With the help of Cumberland (Harry Shannon), his superior, and a piece of her jewelry for identification, Pat gets Katie recorded as officially dead. But Katie is arrested when the swapped passport brands her as "Anna Beckenstein." Pat attempts to prove it a mistake by posing as her husband, and both are thrown into a concentration camp.

They finally establish their real identities with the U. S. Consul, are freed and manage to reach Paris. However, France, too, is on the verge of falling and the two find it difficult to get passports to America. When Katie reveals to the American Consul that she is the Baroness von Luber she is sent to Le Blanc (Albert Dekker) to have passport pictures made.

While Pat is out buying them some decent clothes, Le Blanc proves to Katie that he is an American secret service operative and induces her to return to the Baron and tip off his plans toward America to the American secret service.

Although her hatred for the Baron has become great, Katie agrees to do so. That night Pat and Katie express their love for each other for the first time, but she cannot reveal that she is to return to the Baron.

The next day Pat cannot understand Katie's disappearance until he meets the Baron, who reveals that his wife has returned. When the true situation is explained to him by Le Blanc, Pat agrees to do some broadcasting for the Baron until he can figure a way out.

At a reception for Hitler in the Chillon Hotel in Paris, Katie and Le Blanc arouse the Baron's suspicions. At the same time, during a broadcast designed by the Baron to extol his power and importance, Pat double-crosses him. Katie and Pat manage to escape and catch a boat for America.

On board, to their surprise, is the Baron, as advance man for Hitler, now headed for the United States. In an encounter the Baron goes overboard. The future Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Toole rather calmly notify the steamer captain, who agrees, laughingly, that it is just too bad.

This rippling, mirthful Story of a Girl on her Honeymoon with a man not her husband and, worse yet, the one who is, brings you in "ONCE UPON A HONEYMOON" which opens Sunday for three days at the GRAND THEATRE, one of the best entertainments of the year.—

NAVY SEEKING LOCAL BOYS FOR SPECIAL DUTY

High school boys of Circleville and Pickaway county who can pass rigid physical and mental examinations are being given an opportunity to enter the U. S. navy's new college training program. The navy in sending information concerning the program to high school principals announced that boys who enroll will be eligible for commissions at the end of their schooling. The new program is called V-12.

Information and application blanks for the training are available for all boys of the district. A boy to enroll must be 17 but not yet 20. High school students, boys in preparatory schools, others who have been graduated but are not in school, and boys who are seeking a college education are sought by the navy for the officer training course.

Youths enrolling must have 18-20 vision in each eye, must be unmarried and promise to stay that way until commissioned.

Enrollees will be assigned to various colleges throughout the country. Regular navy discipline will prevail.

Since school men must make reports at the earliest possible moment to the navy department it is important that youths wishing to enroll consult the principal of their school at once.

Already one Pickaway township youth has received notice from the naval aviation cadet selection board in Detroit that he has been accepted. He is Kenneth Eugene Wolford, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wolford, Circleville Route 1.

Young Wolford, a star of the county championship basketball team, has three brothers already in service. He will not be called for active duty until he is graduated from Pickaway school in the Spring.

Young Wolford will then begin the 16-months flight training course which is designed to enable him to win his wings of gold and a commission as ensign in the U. S. naval reserve or as a second lieutenant in the Marine corps reserve.

What It's All About! Upon A Honeymoon!

WHILE ATTEMPTING to get a story for American newspapers on the forthcoming marriage of Miss Katharine Butt-Smith, of Philadelphia, to Baron von Luber (Walter Slezak), Correspondent Patrick O'Toole (Cary Grant), in Vienna, discovers that Miss Butt-Smith is, in reality, Katie O'Hara (Ginger Rogers), former American dancer, and that the Baron had something to do with Hitler's easy invasion of Austria. So when Pat is appointed a short-wave newscaster to America, he decides to stick close to the Baron. Sticking close to the Baroness offers an interesting prospect as well. He meets her by pretending to be a dress stylist come to give her a fitting.

Katie and the Baron are married en route to Warsaw. Pat shows up there, too, and when General Borelski (Albert Basserman), high military official of Poland, is mysteriously murdered just as the German invasion starts, Pat has little trouble in convincing Katie that her affable husband is in reality a dangerous man.

Even as Pat is sending a short-wave warning to America that Poland has been betrayed from within, the bombing of Warsaw starts. The Baron is arrested before the invading army moves in, and Katie and Pat are thrown together in a mutual attempt to get out of the country.

Katie reveals her true quality to Pat when she swaps her passport with that of a maid in the hotel who is finding it difficult to flee with her two small children because they are Jewish.

With the help of Cumberland (Harry Shannon), his superior, and a piece of her jewelry for identification, Pat gets Katie recorded as officially dead. But Katie is arrested when the swapped passport brands her as "Anna Beckenstein." Pat attempts to prove it a mistake by posing as her husband, and both are thrown into a concentration camp.

They finally establish their real identities with the U. S. Consul, are freed and manage to reach Paris. However, France, too, is on the verge of falling and the two find it difficult to get passports to America. When Katie reveals to the American Consul that she is the Baroness von Luber she is sent to Le Blanc (Albert Dekker) to have passport pictures made.

While Pat is out buying them some decent clothes, Le Blanc proves to Katie that he is an American secret service operative and induces her to return to the Baron and tip off his plans toward America to the American secret service.

Although her hatred for the Baron has become great, Katie agrees to do so. That night Pat and Katie express their love for each other for the first time, but she cannot reveal that she is to return to the Baron.

The next day Pat cannot understand Katie's disappearance until he meets the Baron, who reveals that his wife has returned. When the true situation is explained to him by Le Blanc, Pat agrees to do some broadcasting for the Baron until he can figure a way out.

At a reception for Hitler in the Chillon Hotel in Paris, Katie and Le Blanc arouse the Baron's suspicions. At the same time, during a broadcast designed by the Baron to extol his power and importance, Pat double-crosses him. Katie and Pat manage to escape and catch a boat for America.

On board, to their surprise, is the Baron, as advance man for Hitler, now headed for the United States. In an encounter the Baron goes overboard. The future Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Toole rather calmly notify the steamer captain, who agrees, laughingly, that it is just too bad.

This rippling, mythical Story of a Girl on her Honeymoon with a man not her husband and, worse yet, the one who is, brings you in "ONCE UPON A HONEYMOON" which opens Sunday for three days at the GRAND THEATRE, one of the best entertainments of the year.
